The functions of this department were previously performed by the Arizona Department of Commerce.

Assessment

The ongoing collection and analysis of a person's medical, psychological, psychiatric and social conditions in order to initially determine if a behavioral health disorder exists, if there is a need for behavioral health services, and on an ongoing basis ensure that the person's service plan is designed to meet the person's (and family's) current needs and long term goals.

Attachment (relationship)

An enduring emotional connection between a caregiver and an infant/young child. Attachment is characterized by the child's tendency, when under stress, to seek contact, comfort and proximity to a specific individual ("attachment figure") who is perceived to be bigger, stronger, wiser, and more competent. If that person is available to the child for comfort or protection, s/he will be preferred over any other individual. Conditions which typically activate children's behavior for seeking comfort and security are fatigue, illness, fear, and other experiences of vulnerability. Infants are not born attached to anyone and early on respond to the various people they encounter in very similar (though not identical) ways. Over the course of the first year of life however, infants become increasingly selective about whom they regard as competent to protect and comfort them. The emergence of a discriminate attachment figure, an attachment to a specific other, typically occurs in the 7-9 month period of development, cross-culturally. Given the opportunity, infants typically form attachments to more than one person.

Attachment Behavior

Any form of behavior that results in a person attaining or retaining proximity to a specific and preferred individual for the purpose of achieving protection, comfort, and/or the feeling of security. A young child's attachment behaviors include crying, smiling, calling, reaching, following, clinging, and protesting separations from attachment figures, the condition of being alone, or placement with a stranger. Attachment behaviors are designed to activate the caregiver's corresponding inclination to meet the child's need for protection, comfort, and/or the feeling of security.

A CON is a certification made by a physician that inpatient services are or were needed at the time of the person's admission to a Level I facility. Although a CON must be submitted prior to a person's admission (except in an emergency), a CON is not an authorization tool designed to approve or deny an inpatient service, rather it is a federally required attestation by a physician that inpatient services are or were needed at the time of the person's admission. The decision to authorize a service that requires prior authorization is determined through the application of admission and continued stay authorization criteria. In the event of an emergency, the CON must be submitted:

Child and Adolescent Service Intensity Instrument (CASII)

The CASII is a tool to determine the appropriate service intensity for a child or adolescent. The CASII assessment method consists of quantifying the clinical severity and service needs on six dimensions (eight ratings) that are standardized using anchor points. The ratings are quantified in order to convey information easily, but also provide a rating spectrum along which a child/adolescent may score on any given dimension. This can be done for any child/adolescent ages 6-18 in any setting regardless of diagnosis or the system with which the child is involved. The instrument also considers three distinct types of disorders: psychiatric disorders, substance use disorders, or developmental disorders (including autism and mental retardation), and has the ability to integrate these as overlapping clinical issues. Once the dimensional ratings are done, the scores are combined to generate a service intensity recommendation.

Child and Family Team

The Child and Family Team (CFT) is a defined group of people that includes, at a minimum, the child and his/her family, a behavioral health representative, and any individuals important in the child's life and who are identified and invited to participate by the child and family . This may include, for example, teachers, extended family, members, friends, family support partners, healthcare providers, coaches, community resource providers, representatives from religious affiliations, agent from other service systems like Child Protective Services (CPS) or the Division of Developmental Disabilities (DDD), etc. The size, scope and intensity of involvement of the team members are determined by the objectives established for the child, the needs of the family in providing for the child, and by which individuals are needed to develop an effective ISP, and can therefore expand and contract as necessary to be successful on behalf of the child.

Child and Family Team (CFT) Facilitator

Although, individuals other than the behavioral health service provider may lead a CFT meeting, ultimately the behavioral health service provider is responsible for facilitating the CFT practice. If designated by the CFT, a team member may assume responsibility for leading team meetings and moderating discussions to facilitate consensus in the development of Service Plan goals and interventions. Individuals other than behavioral health service providers (i.e. family members, Child Protective Services' case managers, and natural supports) can learn to lead effective Child and Family Team meetings.

service models to better meet the needs of diverse populations. ### Recovery

Recovery is a deeply personal process and no single, universally accepted definition of recovery currently exists. In the simplest sense, recovery is a lived experience of moving through and beyond the limits of one's disorder. In the process, individuals develop a positive and meaningful sense of identity separate from their condition, disability or its consequences in their life.<sup>1</sup> Key characteristics of recovery include:

- Recovery is personal and individualized (not defined by a treatment agency)
- Recovery moves beyond symptom reduction and relief (e.g. meaningful connections in the community, overcoming specific skill deficits, establishing a sense of quality and well-being)
- Recovery is both a process of healing (regaining) and a process of discovery (moving beyond)
- Recovery encompasses the possibility for individuals to test, make mistakes and try again.

Recovery can occur within or outside the context of professionally directed treatment, and where professional treatment is involved, it may, depending on its orientation and methods, play a facilitative, insignificant or inhibiting role in the recovery process.<sup>2</sup> A small yet exciting body of research suggests that peer-delivered services produce outcomes superior to professional treatment alone in several key domains, including increased social networks, lower levels of worry and improved satisfaction with life.
